When I first launched Xcom 2 I experienced a red screen bug. After adding -noRedScreens-review on Xcom label the problem was solved. But now if I add mods and run the game through the mod manager Red Screens bug is back. Any suggestions? RedScreens are a tool used to help capture serious but fatal errors. They are clearly added through the macro 'REDSCREEN' (your red screen text). They don't indicate that something is going wrong, other than what's going on anyway, they're just a clearly obvious reporting mechanism. RedScreens should be disabled in the release version of the game, and only when you start debugging. (That is, when you run through SDK or with appropriate command line arguments). If you get redscreens when playing normally, I'm not sure what might be the reason for this - it doesn't happen for me when I run XCom2.exe usually without the command line settings. It's pretty simple in the nexus mod manager you'll be editing a new command for XCOM2 as a custom launch team. In the custom launch team windows you will be inserted: -first box: xcom 2 full way exe (ex: C:\blabla\binaries\win64\xcom2.exe -second box (arguments) : -noredscreens -review Found it and after adding arguments no more redscreens. How do you add these lines to the label? When I do this, fashions don't appear. None of my mods have shown that it's pretty easy in the nexus mod manager you'll be editing a new team for XCOM2 as a custom launch team. will be embed: -first box: xcom 2 full way exe (former: C:\blabla\binaries\win64\xcom2.exe -second box (arguments) : -noredscreens -review is a fix for the problem redscreen I tried this and it worked! makina2014 is pretty simple in nexus mod manager you'll be editing a new command for XCOM2 as a custom launch team. : C:\blabla\binaries\win64\xcom2.exe -second box (arguments) : -noredscreens -review, how to do it to do it from the fashion manager nexus or where I can edit it Thanks Edited dpoonk2008, 10 October 2016 - 01:46 PM.
